Imaging should be chosen based on level of concern. Minimizing radiation should be a goal of all pediatric imaging, meaning US and MR will often be the modalities of choice. Abdominal XR is common, but has low specificity and sensitivity for most etiologies of pain.